

أبي اقرأ لي 2016

READ TO ME BABA
CAMPAIGN

Read To Me Baba

12-14 November 2016

Read to me Baba Campaign is a continuation of the philosophy of promoting reading in the Palestinian community, which started in April of this year in all the Palestinian districts. At a time when fathers are helpless to protect their children from violations committed by the Israeli occupation, the campaign strives to try, along with fathers and through them, to create spaces that provide a feeling of security. The Read to Me Baba Campaign is an initiative launched by Tamer Institute for Community Education in 2010 and a part of a process that seeks to rebuild the social fabric, and to reconsider the role of the father within a social and humanistic context to provide a humane, social atmosphere that contributes to deepening and enriching culture in Palestinian society. This social fabric protects the individual and society, and promotes human and social values of love, hope and diversity.

Join your children the excitement of reading, writing, playing, and painting. These moments of pleasure and communication, contributes to strengthening the social fabric between parents and children in the Palestinian society, this fabric that keeps our society strong.

We recommend that you don't limit your participation with your children to the campaign days, this is a continuous call to keep visiting the public libraries, school libraries and to establish a library at your home as well. This is an invitation to think deeply about the relationship that connects you with your children.

You can join and participate in this campaign with your sons and daughters, at home, school and in everywhere you choose. For more information, please contact us: Tel-Ramallah: 02-2986121 or Tel -Gaza:
